(Special to The Herald)

New York, July 22.—All records for deaths in the epidemic of infantile paralysis were broken during the 24 hours ending at 10 a. m. today. During that period 39 children stricken with the disease died. Today's figures also showed a big increase in the number of new cases, there being 131 as against 81 on Friday. The deaths on Friday numbered 32. Up to the present there have been 2,662 cases, and 558 deaths and the city physicians have abandoned hope that the disease will soon be under control. All five boroughs with the exception of Richmond showed an increase today in the number of cases.

There will be a first aid exhibition, vocal and instrumental music, and Master Clarence Jones, the wonderful boy reader, will give a number of pieces. It is understood that the boys will camp in tents at the ball grounds.

Fair weather is predicted for Sunday which will be pleasing news to many who are contemplating an outing.

DEUTSCHLAND STILL SNUGLY AT ANCHOR

Big Super-Submarine Quietly Awaiting Chance to Slip Out of Port Into Open Sea on Homeward Trip

(Special to The Herald)

Baltimore, July 22.—The German super-submarine Deutschland still lay snugly at her closely guarded dock here today watching for every shift of charts or weather that would aid her in her start for Germany. The activity of Allied warships off the Virginia Capes and the activities of Allied observers from Baltimore to Hampton Roads have forced the big undersea boat to play a waiting game. Only superlative advantages in the way of heavy weather or relaxation of the Allies' patrol will tempt the big submarine to leave her safe anchorage and take to the open sea. Capt. Paul Koenig of the boat and Capt. F. S. Hinch, port captain of the Ocean Rhyderal, which owns the submarine, decided today that they would take no chances. Shore leave was resumed today and members of the crew were allowed to accept invitations from friends in Baltimore.

A tea was served under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Bliss of Washington, Misses Cornelia Fiske and Ruth Stanwood of Boston, Louise and Sarah King of Washington, Hilda and Mary Sargent of New Haven, Janet Hunter of Providence and Alice Whitridge of Baltimore.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS THREATENED

British Boycott of American Merchants and Interference With Mail Serious Matters of Difference

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, July 22.—A very serious controversy between the U. S. and Great Britain and her allies is impending. This was made plain in official circles today. Two very serious matters of difference have arisen between this country and Great Britain. They threaten the friendly relations so far existing. Of greater importance is the British boycott attempt to be enforced against American merchants, but involved so deeply that it cannot be separated, is the British and French interference with American mail. That the latter situation is considered "most serious" is shown by the following statement by Acting Secretary of State Polk today: "The department is becoming very impatient over the failure of Great Britain to reply in regard to our mail inquiries."

DIARY MAY GIVE CLEW

Dr. Celia F. Adams, the Brookline Young Woman, May Have Been Poisoned.

Brookline, July 22.—The finding of a diary kept by Dr. Celia F. Adams today brought the authoritative announcement that it contains statements that may solve the deep mystery of her death by mercury poisoning.

News of the finding of the girl's diary was followed by statements that there will be developments of a sensational nature in a day or two.

What these developments might be the police refuse to divulge.

The last entry in the girl's diary is regarded by the police as significant. The statement in her own handwriting, and written either late Sunday night or Monday, follows:

Met Ellie at the South Station at 7.30 Sunday night.

We went to Revere Beach and sat a long time on the sand.

Discussed matter further.

"Ellie" according to the police apparently refers to Dr. Eldridge's daughter, the dead girl's fiancée.

STAR ISLAND REDEDICATED

Monster Meeting of Unitarians Celebrate the Transfer of the Property.

The steamer Sightseer carried the bulk of her capacity on the 11.45 trip today. About 100 or more came from Boston and vicinity, while some fifty went from this city and vicinity. The selection of life and officials of Portsmouth were invited. The program started at 3 o'clock this afternoon and included addresses and musical numbers.

Secretary Wetherell and the other officers of the association worked like beavers for the success of the affair. A hundred newcomers added life to the meeting.

One thing has been made sure—the hotel and cottages will have to be added to before next season. There are many new enthusiasts and a fund sufficient to make the island home of God's work large enough to accommodate all those who desire to attend these conferences is certain.

WITH THE SPORTS

(By Frank G. Menke)

The boys who play the favorites on the New York race tracks are weeping, gnashing their molars, tearing their throats and otherwise registering anguish. The favorites are not coming home in front with a degree of consistency. As a result there is a woe hereabouts the town of New York.

The way in which the so-called "class" horses have been beaten by the "trucks" has begun to appal the professional gamblers who play favorites and nothing else. Their once

A GRAND OLD PITCHER FOR A GRAND YOUNG SHORTSTOP.

CHRISTOPHER MATHEWSON

CHRISTOPHER MATHEWSON

Christopher Mathewson, grand old pitcher of the New York Giants, who is now seeing his last season as a pitcher, has been traded for Charley Herzog, just relieved as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, one of the best, if not the best, shortstops in the National League. Cincinnati wants a manager, and Matty is ambitious to try himself as a manager, even in Cincinnati, where managers find it absolutely impossible to get along with the club owners. Herzog might help the New York Giants toward a pennant.

plump bank rolls have been shivered away.

Over a week's stretch, involving three days at Aqueduct and three at the Empire track, outsiders won 23 out of the 36 races that were run. In nine of the 11 combats in which the favorites were victorious, the winning horses were odds-on, meaning that the collections for the "picks" in these affairs were very small indeed.

One profession told us that the fabled week had cost him $1300.

"I plunked $100 on every race," he said, "that meant an outlay of $3600 for the week. I got back a profit of exactly $900 for winning the 11 bets, plus my $1400 bet on those 11 races. Altogether $2300 was returned to me against my original outlay of $3600, meaning that I lost $1300 on the week although I picked 11 winners out of 36."

High Noon, the great James Butler sprinter, continued to be the chute through which the wise ones have been dropping large sums. A sensation last year, High Noon is unable to do anything even ordinary this season.

In practically all the races in which he has been entered, High Noon has been the favorite. But the fast thoroughbred has dimmed his brightness on almost every occasion this year by his failure to romp in ahead. Second place is the best he seems able to do.

No horse can get away from the past faster than High Noon, nor can any runner match his great stride for the first three or four furlongs. But then High Noon seems to shift away and one or the other of the stretch runners breezes along, overtakes him and leads him to the finish line.

After High Noon played from one end of the track to the other, a week or so ago, he was beaten out by Will and the gambling element raised its right mitt and murmured "Never again."

"Shopping" for odds is now one of the popular outdoor sports at the New York tracks. Different "layers" offer different prices. There is no uniformity in wagering. One "layer" may offer 5 to 1 against a horse; the next may make it three to one or 8 to 1, according to his own particular ideas.

Touts are unknown on the New York tracks these days. In the other era when betting was a in racket and conducted in the open, the wools were full of them. But they seem to have quit business permanently when the ponies were raked out of the state some years ago.

Touting under present betting conditions sizes up as a rather difficult task. No one can absolutely spot the man who is going to do his wagering, until he has made his bet. The better shrewds his moves and a tout, therefore would have quite a job picking up a victim for his sure thing tips.

PRESSING NEEDS OF ARMENIANS

The New England Committee for Armenian Relief deeply appreciates the help which many friends have contributed toward keeping the deported and despoiled Armenians alive. A reading of letters accompanying the contributions show how real is this interest that has been taken. More than $18,000 have been sent by the New England Committee to be added to the $600,000 already raised and sent to the needy Armenians by the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief of 70 Fifth Ave., New York.

At the same time we cannot think that this $18,000 thus far contributed through the New England Committee at all measures the generous feelings of New England people toward a race, many of whose members are in our borders, and whose welfare has always been a source of special concern to us.

WITH THE LOCAL SPORTS

The fans will have a chance, weather permitting, to show the promoters of Saturday baseball if they want games on the local diamond on Saturdays or not, when York Beach meets the picked team from the Sunset League this afternoon. The game should prove mighty interesting as the York Beach nine is a strong organization and the best of the league has been selected to give them battle. The game will be called at 3.00 o'clock. Get out and root for the team if you want Saturday baseball.

The weatherman had to spoil a good game last night when the Marley Butternut Company and the Portsmouth Athletic Club were scheduled to meet; the prize being practically the top position in the league. The game will go over now until near the close of the season, but it will serve to keep the interest high in the remainder of the battles to be fought before the race for the 1916 pennant is settled.

There is talk of holding some athletic meets on the playgrounds on Labor Day as the youngsters were cheated out of their sports on the Fourth of July. It has been suggested that in addition to the children's sports a baseball game and a tennis tournament might be arranged. It would be a pretty fair proposition and should prove interesting.

Moreover the Armenian appeal gains greatly in weight just now because of the possibility of rehabilitating and re-establishing entire families on the land in the wake of the advancing Russian army in Eastern Turkey. Ambassador Morgenthau says: "Twenty-five dollars will enable an Armenian family to be established in comparative comfort. I believe every person would be happy to sacrifice something and give $25 for the Armenians."

The National Committee believes that it has unusually able distributors—American and German consuls and missionaries—at its funds on the field, who are making the relief money help the largest possible number and in the wisest way. Thus far administration expenses have been only 1 per cent of the amount contributed, and this has been paid by the members of the National Committee. Thus far also the Rockefeller Foundation has added practically another dollar to every dollar given.

It is within the next 30 days that a greatly increased amount should be received in order to enable the people, who escaped across the Russian frontier when the deportations occurred, but who are now returning to their land to sow crops and provide for the autumn harvest. Contributions should be sent to the treasurer, Henry D. Forbes, National Shawmut Bank, Boston. Local contributions designated "Armenian Relief" should be sent to the Local Treasurer, John McPhie, First National Bank, Portsmouth, N.H.

BOXING NOTES

Followers of high class boxing will have an opportunity to see the best men in the welterweight division next Tuesday night at the Armory A. A. Boston when Jack Britton of New York and Johnny Griffiths of Akron, O., meet in the feature bout of 12 rounds. The match is the best from a scientific standpoint that could possibly be arranged by the local club.

The men are well matched in every way. They are artists in their special line, and we have but to look back at things of the past to convince ourselves that this is an absolute reality. Neither Britton nor Griffiths wants for inside knowledge of boxing. Both are clever and this fact presages a duel of more than the ordinary.

They have been seen against the rushing, mixing exponents of the game and each emerged with the honors. Britton in his last bout here made Mike O'Dowd, the St. Paul fighter, look like a novice and Griffiths with Beecher performed a similar feat. Beecher required a whip to land on the feet of Akron man.

Conjure a picture if you can of Britton and Griffiths duelling over a 12 round bout for the honors. It will be something out of the ordinary, a classic as it were, and those who see the bout will see a contest worth going more than a few miles to peep at.

An important match will also be seen when Bill Casey, the idol of South Boston, and Joe White meet in the semi-final. White is the boy who fought Mike Gibbons a few years ago, going over the 12 round journey with the St. Paul phantom. The first preliminary will be between Johnny Downes of South Boston and Dan McCormack of E. Boston. Frank McGinnis of Philadelphia and a Johnny Martin of East Boston will meet in the opening 6 round bout.

MEXICAN ISSUES SETTLEMENT NOW APPEARING PROBABLE

Informal Agreement Between Mr. Polk and Mr. Arredondo Expected to be Ratified by President Wilson and Carranza

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Information is available that indicates the near completion of the informal conference between acting Secretary Polk and Mr. Arredondo for the settlement of the Mexican question.

Henry P. Fletcher, the ambassador designate to Mexico, has been participating in the conference and interpreting for Mr. Arredondo whenever it was necessary to assure a clear understanding.

Secretary Lansing is being kept informed of the progress of the negotiations, and it is expected that an announcement will soon be forthcoming, after President Wilson and General Carranza have endorsed the informal agreement which will then become formal.

The understanding is now, that Mr. Fletcher will go to his post in Mexico City soon after Mr. Lansing returns to Washington and that simultaneously Mr. Arredondo will be received by President Wilson as the ambassador of Mexico. It is thought that the restoration of full diplomatic relations will aid much in bringing the two governments into close relations again.

As to the nature of the conference that have been going on, and the subjects discussed at them, nothing can be said. It is explained at the state department that the matters under discussion are so delicate that the purpose of the negotiations would be defeated if publicity were given them. It is permissible to say, only, that the conferences have to do with the powers and responsibilities of each government at the border in the maintenance of order and protection of property.

State department officials say they have no information as to when General Pershing's troops will be withdrawn from Mexico, believing that this was a military question entirely in the hands of the war department.

There have been intimations that one of the subjects, discussed by Mr. Polk and Mr. Arredondo, was whether the question of withdrawal of the troops should be submitted to joint commissioners for consideration. Since the Washington government has made it plain on every occasion, that the troops would retire whenever Carranza troops could insure the security of the border, it appears probable that Mr. Polk thought it unnecessary for the commission to go into that subject and so informed Mr. Arredondo.

A dispatch which has been received from General Pershing saying that General Gonzalez had conferred with him as to reports of the seizure of the Huasteca ranch in Chihuahua, and then had proceeded to investigate the case, was viewed here as further evidence of the more conciliatory attitude of all Carranza officials.

General Pershing had called attention to this change previously, saying that the general opinion of those Mexicans with whom he came in contact, was that a peaceful adjustment of all difficulties would be found.

The war department has issued a series of reports on the mobilization of the national guard for border duty, all designed to refute charges that the men have been improperly rationed and not given the best facilities available in their trip south. Secretary Baker is preparing a report to Congress on the subject in response to a resolution adopted a few days ago.

Mexican Peace Proposals
Mexico City, July 21.—The details of Mexico's proposals for a peaceful solution of the difficulties existing with the United States were made public last night by the foreign office. A copy of the note, which was sent to the Washington government July 11, was given to the newspapers for publication in this morning's editions.

The note proposes the naming of three commissioners by each government, the commissioners to meet at some neutral point for the purpose of discussing the withdrawal of the American troops now in Mexico, the drawing up of an agreement providing term for the reciprocal crossing of the frontier by the troops of either nation, and the investigation of the origin of the parties which have raided American border towns, for the purpose of definitely fixing responsibility for them.

In commenting on the note foreign office officials said that as the note had not yet been answered by the Washington government they considered it their duty to the Mexican people to make it public, that Mexicans might know what effect their government was making toward a peaceful solution of the pending difficulties.

It has been learned from unofficial sources that the conference probably will be held in Niagara Falls. The names of the Mexican delegates have not yet been made public, but it is known that they will all be civilians, and that the chairman of the commission will be a member of General Carranza's cabinet well known in the United States. It is believed that the conference will convene early in August.

The note, which the foreign office says the United States government has never answered, is directed to Eliseo Arredondo, General Carranza's agent at Washington. It follows:

"By order of the Citizen First Chief you will please transmit in writing to the Honorable Secretary of State the following note:

"I have the honor to refer to the note of your Excellency, dated the 7th of the present month, that was transmitted by our confidential agent, Arredondo, and to say that I have received instructions from the citizen first chief of the Constitutional army in charge of the executive power to propose through you to his excellency Mr. President Wilson, the idea of naming three commissioners in representation of each government, to meet at some place, to be later agreed upon, for the purpose of holding a conference that the proposition of the evacuation of American troops now occupying Mexican soil may be decided forthwith, and that a protocol or agreement may be drawn up, specifying conditions for the reciprocal crossing of the frontier by the forces of either nation, as well as to make an investigation of the origin of bandits to date, in order to definitely fix the responsibility and settle pending differences which may have arisen from similar cause, all subject to the approval of the two governments.

"The Mexican government proposes that the conference referred to be carried out in the spirit of frank cordiality, with a strong desire to arrive at an arrangement honorable and satisfactory to both governments and with the idea that if the government accepts the proposal it will so recommend to the delegates which it may name.

"The Mexican government considers this the most effective manner for arriving at the desired result, and hopes the government of the United States will manifest its acceptance of this idea in order that it may be immediately put in practice, and that the Mexican government may send the names of its delegates. Assure his Excellency of my highest consideration.

NATIONAL FOREST RECEIPTS EXCEED ALL PREVIOUS YEARS

Washington, July 21.—Receipts from National Forests for the fiscal year 1916 reached the high-water mark of approximately $2,226,000, according to figures just compiled. This is $311,000 above the 1915 total, which in turn exceeded any previous year. Officials say that the gain was due to increased demand for all classes of forest products.

There was a depleted growth in the revenue from all sources, the largest being that of $293,000 in timber sales. Grazing fees showed a gain of $77,000. Receipts for water power development were over $12,000 more than for 1915. Sales of turpentine privileges and charges for special uses were both considerably in excess of the previous year.

Officials say that the National Forests are important factors in the prosperity of the regions in which they are located, on account of the large amounts of timber, range, and other resources which they hold available for use as needed. Business conditions are reflected in the receipts of the Forests. Consequently the showing for the past year is regarded as an index of increased business activity throughout the sections where the National Forests are found.

BOARD OF TRADE PROTESTS EXCESSIVE WATER RATES

At the Invitation of the President Several Businessmen Called at the Board of Public Works to Learn Reason for Increase

The action of the Board of Public Works in increasing the water rates to consumers of the city has met with strong protest for the past ten weeks or more and a continued cry against the excessive charges has been heard daily. Individuals have made it their business to call at the office of the Board of Public Works in an effort to receive some satisfactory explanation; but they have met with little or no success. It has been claimed by many, not without foundation, that at the present rate consumers are paying more for water in this city than in any city in the state. The books of the water department will show that less water has been used since January 1, 1915, than had been used at any corresponding period in the past. The books will also show that the city has a great amount of water on hand, so much in fact, that the Haven Springs Pumping Station has been closed for several hours many of the days owing to the fact that its use was not needed to keep the supply above a certain point.

All of this is admitted by the Board, but the rates have not come down. It has, for some time, been the contention of the clerk of the Board that there had been no increase in the rates, nor would there be any raise. At city hall on Friday, before several representative business men of Portsmouth, Mr. Sugden endeavored to give a reason for the increase, thus admitting, for the first time we have learned, that there had been an increase.

Friday afternoon, at the invitation of Frederick M. Sise, president of the Portsmouth Board of Trade, Mr. Sise, Hermann Leibruck of the Frank Jones Brewing Company, William H. Harrington of the Portsmouth Brewing Company, Edwin Seybolt, secretary of the Board of Trade, Gustave Peyser, Harry E. Boynton of the Boynton Bottling Works, and Charles J. Dunne of the Gale Shoe Company, called on the clerk of the board, and City Engineer against the high rate now being demanded for the use of water. These business men were met by Mr. Sugden, clerk of the board and City Engineer, who made an effort to give a satisfactory statement "as to why the present rate seemed higher than was necessary."

The story of one of these men is the same as every other. Mr. Boynton stated that his bill for water at his place of business was twenty per cent higher than it had been before the present meter system was installed, and that his bill for water at his residence had been doubled.

As has been the custom at all meetings of the sort at the office of the Board of Public Works, the doors were closed during the conference and although an effort was made to learn from Mr. Sugden what transpired, it was not possible to reach him last evening. It has been learned, however, that he gave an analysis of the meter readings to show why the advance was necessary in some cases to provide the necessary amount of money to keep the revenue up to the point where it has always stood. He also contended that where the bill had been increased in many cases, the same rate was being charged in others and that the bills were lower.

From conversation with three of the gentlemen who were among those entering the protest, they were far from being satisfied with the analysis as presented by Mr. Sugden. What action the Board of Trade intends to adopt has not been learned but it is understood that the organization has no intention of dropping the matter and an effort will be made to find some means of correcting the present difficulty. The business men feel that with the high rate of taxation, $22.50 on a thousand, the high water rates, and other conditions, are working detrimentally to the city. All of these conditions cause an increase in rentals which property owners are obliged to make; and this will soon result in the driving away of many of the families of workmen, when the business men are hoping to cause the city to grow.

LINSINGEN BEGINS NEW GERMAN OFFENSIVE MOVE

Berlin, via London, July 21.—Hard fighting has been resumed in Volhynia, southwest of Lutsk. German troops under General von Linsingen are on the aggressive here at some points, and have succeeded in securing advances. The Russians are bombarding the Tenthale lines along the lower Lipa with increasing intensity.

The statement of operations along the eastern front:

"Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The enemy yesterday resumed attacks during the afternoon on both sides of the road from Ekan to Kekkon southeast of Riga, but was unsuccessful. He only increased his great losses. Strong reconnaissance by Russian patrols were everywhere repulsed.

"Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria: Russian attacks in the district of Skrobowa (Baranvichent region) following upon vigorous hand-to-hand fighting, were completely repulsed.

"Army group of General von Linsingen: In the bend of the Stohlad north of Sokul, Austro-Hungarian troops made a brief assault, ejected the Russians from advanced lines and returned to their positions, according to their plan.

"Southwest of Lutsk, German troops pushed farther forward their position along the general line of Greenko-witz-Jellarow. The enemy increased his fire on the lower Lipa in the district of Werben.

"Army group of General Count von Balthasar: There have been no important events."

Reprisals on Turk Ships
London, July 21.—A Reuter's Petrograd dispatch says that the Russian minister of Foreign Affairs has informed the Turkish Government, through the ambassadors of the United States and Spain, that Russia will henceforth disregard the principles of The Hague convention so far as Turkish hospital ships are concerned.

British Win and Lose
London, July 21.—The British line north of Bazentin and Longueval has been pushed forward to Bourdeaux wood, the War Office announced today. The British drove the Germans from the wood, but lost part of this position subsequently.

The statement follows:

"The battle continues without intermission between the Leipzig redoubt on the west and Delville wood on the east. North of the Bazentin-Longueval line the British advance has been pushed to Bourdeaux wood from which we drove the enemy."

"During the night the enemy counter-attacked after an intense bombardment with gas shells, and succeeded in effecting entry into the northern part of the wood, but failed to dislodge us from the southern half."

"Elsewhere there is no change."

British Gain 1000 Yards
The official statement issued about midnight from British headquarters in France, reads:

"North of the Bazentin-Longueval line we advanced about 1000 yards in the face of stubborn opposition. Heavy fighting still continues in the northern outskirts of Longueval villages and in Delville wood."

"On the remainder of the main battle front there is no change."

British Stormed Delville Wood
According to press reports, having made Longueval and their position in Delville wood secure, the British stormed the high wood, and in both these woods and the fields between the front and the village of Guillemont the Germans, missing fresh forces brought from Verdun since their whole tactical situation in the Somme region became endangered, resisted the British with the savage determination not to yield further high ground, which is nothing more than knolls and rolling farmland, harrowed by shells and whipped by bullets, whose loss leaves command of the position to the British. The Germans are still bringing up guns, presumably from Verdun and from the high woods to the Somme all day they seemed to be answering the preponderant British fire with all the power they had.

Heavy Fighting at Verdun
Paris, July 21.—On the Verdun front the artillery was active on both sides in the vicinity of Chattancourt and Fleury, says this afternoon's official report.

"On the Verdun front there was great activity of the artillery on both sides in the sections of Chattancourt and Fleury."

Last night's statement said:

"On the right bank of the Meuse we continued to progress west of the Tullant field work by the use of the grenade. The total number of prisoners taken by us this morning in the section of Fleury was 300, including eight officers."

Criticism and Faultfinding.

Criticism and faultfinding are two very different things, though they are often confounded. Those who practice them and those against whom they are directed are too apt to mistake one for the other, and the result in many cases is hard feeling and a lack of any substantial accomplishment. This is because much that is called criticism is nothing but thoughtless nagging and faultfinding, indulged in often by people who are well meaning, but who have not taken pains to ascertain all the facts before beginning to talk. They "go off at half-cock," so to speak, and the consequence is that the air is filled with a great deal of the kind of what is commonly accepted as criticism, but which in reality is nothing but petty faultfinding.

An example of this sort of thing was recently furnished in connection with a camp where a body of the National Guard was being fitted for duty on the border. One of the men wrote home complaining of insufficient food and ragged clothing and putting up a "howler" that disturbed the whole town from which he came. So great was the stir caused by this letter that members of the board of trade immediately visited the camp to see for themselves what the conditions were.

And what did they find? Nothing whatever to justify the statements of the letter writer. So far as rations were concerned they found them good enough for the officers, who were faring the same as the men and were satisfied. Uniforms were being provided as rapidly as possible, and in the meantime the recruits were drilling in the clothes they wore when they joined the ranks. The investigators went home and told the truth, and the noise ceased.

The situation is much the same in relation to public affairs. There is a great deal of unintelligent shouting that passes for criticism while it is nothing of the sort, and which results simply in discord and confusion.

Intelligent and honest criticism is always wholesome. It points out actual defects and shortcomings and attempts to show where and how improvement is possible. Even this kind of criticism sometimes hurts, but the results are good, while mere faultfinding stirs up the mud in the puddle and results in no good whatever.

There should be an effort to distinguish between criticism and faultfinding. The one is helpful, the other is harmful. One builds up and the other tears down. This would be a better world to live in if people would remember this fact and govern themselves accordingly.

It is said that King George and the Queen are planning to visit Canada after the close of the war. The people of the Dominion will be very glad to see them. They are also hoping that many young men who are now in Europe on the King's business will be able to visit Canada after the war, though they are well aware that there will be some big gaps in the ranks of those who went forth when the call came.

New York city's Bureau of Standards has concluded that no family of five persons can live decently in that city on less than $8.10 a year, and consequently that has been made the minimum pay of common laborers employed by the city. It is also found that some of the employees of the city need as much as $15,000 a year to maintain the proper "standard of living."

The people of a small eastern town have waked up to the possibilities of a crop that has been considered of no consequence in the past and are preparing to send to a neighboring city 60,000 quarts of blueberries this season. This will mean employment for many persons during the picking season and a substantial sum of hard cash for those who "get into the game."

A German opera singer who visited the Deutschland at Baltimore says Captain Koenig told her the vessel will have at least one American on board when she sails for home, as a protection against being attacked without warning. This indicates that the Germans appreciate the doctrine that "What is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander."

Another big shipment of gold and securities has reached New York, this one coming from Russia and the value being $30,000,000. As a money center New York has held a prominent place for many years, and has rapidly forged to the front since the beginning of the war.

SENATE PASSES NAVAL BILL

Measure Includes Immediate Construction of Four Dreadnoughts and Four Cruisers.

Washington, July 22.—The naval appropriation bill, with a three-year building program including the immediate construction of four dreadnoughts, four great battle cruisers, and 53 other craft, passed the Senate late Friday by a vote of 71 to 8.

It carries $315,820,813, or $15,857,553 more than the total as the measure passed the House.

Many proposals to curtail the enormous building increases written into the measure by the Senate naval committee were defeated overwhelmingly and as soon as final passage was announced, the Senate voted to insist on its amendments and send the bill at once to conference. The House is expected to insist on its building program, and a long struggle is in prospect before agreement is reached.

Construction of 157 vessels, including 16 capital fighting ships, within three years, at an estimated cost of $583,180,576, is contemplated in the Senate program, the largest ever proposed in Congress. Of the total appropriations in the bill $119,726,160 is for the first year's building expenditures.

As it passed the House, the measure made no provision for a continuing building program and authorized only 72 ships including five battle cruisers and no dreadnoughts.

Administration leaders regard it as practically certain that in the conference between the two houses at least four battle cruisers and two dreadnoughts to be constructed for at once will be agreed upon.

An analysis of the two building programs shows the following from which the conference must work out their compromise:

	House	Senate	Senate (First year)
Battleships	0	10	4
Battle cruisers	5	6	4
Scout cruisers	4	10	4
Destroyers	10	50	20
Fleet submarines	0	9	0
Coast submarines	150	58	30
Submarines (Net)	0	1	0
Fuel ships	1	3	1
Ammunition ships	1	2	1
Hospital ships	1	1	1
Repair ships	0	1	0
Transport ships	0	1	0
Destroyer tenders	0	2	0
Submarine tenders	0	1	0
Gambiers	0	2	1
Totals	172	157	66

THE DEMOCRATIC REVENUE POLICY

(By Thomas O. Marvin)
During his first inaugural address Thomas Jefferson referred to "the theory and convolutions of the ancient world" and declared that "it was not wonderful that the agitation of the bill should reach even this distant and powerful shore." Among the essential principles of our Government he mentioned "peace, commerce," and "honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none."

These words were spoken on March 4, 1801, and seven months later, in his first message to Congress, December 8, 1801, although the foreign situation still interfered with the revenues of the Government he assured Congress that "there is reasonable ground of confidence that we may now safely dispense with all the internal taxes, and that the remaining sources of revenue will be sufficient to provide for the support of the Government, to pay the interest of the public debts, and to discharge the principal within shorter periods than the laws or the general expectation had contemplated."

The principles of federal taxation laid down by Jefferson in his inaugural addresses and messages to Congress are in sharp contrast with the methods employed today by his successors in Washington. He looked forward with confidence to dispensing with all internal taxes. His followers, now in control of the Government, increase internal taxation beyond anything ever known in this country.

Jefferson believed that the revenues of the Government should be raised by customs duties. Many of his followers today would abolish the customs houses, and the Democratic party, in the face of extraordinary need of revenue, keeps on the statute books the lowest tariff law in a hundred years. It has gone as far as it dares in suppressing customs duties, a policy which as Jefferson said, gives advantage to foreign over domestic manufactures.

Other countries are increasing their tariff duties, affording protection to their industries and making foreigners pay for the privilege of doing business in their markets. But our Congress, as at present constituted, refuses to provide adequate duties even for an industry so necessary to national defense as the dyestuffs industry.

With the world facing conditions unprecedented in history, with the keenest struggle of all time approaching for control of the world markets, our Congress leaves unamended the lowest tariff law which we have had in a century and calmly invites foreign manufacturers to exploit our market when the war ends.

Agriculture, manufactures, commerce and navigation, Jefferson said, are the four pillars of our prosperity and he told Congress in 1801: "If in the course of your observations or inquiries they should appear to need any aid within the limits of our constitutional powers, your sense of their importance is a sufficient assurance they will occupy your attention."

It is a shame that some men with Jefferson's influence in his party did not say to the Democratic Congress of 1916, "Agriculture, manufactures, commerce and shipping are the pillars of our prosperity, study their needs, inquire into all of the conditions confronting them and if they need aid back them with all of the power of the Government." The importance of these "pillars of our prosperity" has made no impression upon the minds of those who control our Congress, and not even the upheavals of the world's greatest war draw from Congress any sign that affords assurance that they even will occupy its attention so long as the present party-control continues.

Instead of shaping the revenue policy of the Government along the lines recommended by the founder of their party, the present Democratic Congress has ignored the revenue opportunities in a wise increase of customs duties and has resorted to an unprecedented increase in internal taxation, a method of taxation which Jefferson said one hundred and fifteen years ago might wisely be dispensed with.

The condition of the Treasury, the extravagance of appropriations, the revenue needs of the Government make it impossible to carry out in full the Jeffersonian theory, but his party has drifted far from his teachings when it so completely ignores the import duties, as it does in its new revenue measure, and resorts almost entirely to internal and direct taxation.

To tax wealth its fair share of the benefits of government is just and equitable, but to leave the producers of wealth, in factory or on farm, unprotected from destructive competition is neither just nor equitable.

PEOPLES' OPINION

Should Remedy Condition

Editor of Herald:
The conditions of the catch basins at the corner of Vaughan and Hanover street, near the New England Telephone Company's building should be remedied at once for sanitary reasons. During the past week the odor that has arisen from these basins, has not resembled any of the famous odors and people living in that vicinity have been obliged to keep their windows closed. Such conditions should not be allowed to exist in our city.

GREAT RELIGIOUS LEADERS

The Crying Need of Liberal Churches; A Field That Ought to Appeal to the Most Gifted Young Men.

Isles of Shoals, July 22.—Introducing his address on "The Problem of Leadership in a Free Church," Thursday morning, Rev. Frederick M. Elliot, associate pastor of the First Unitarian Church in Cambridge, remarked that this is an age of problems and that the more intimate and delicate a matter is, the more ruthlessly it is invaded by these veritable Huns of the modern problem-craze. One problem of the church taken up was the recruiting of its ministry. For those who question whether leadership is not a gift of the Holy Spirit rather than a product of human effort, Mr. Elliot cited the greatest example in all history of spiritual leadership, the prophet of Nazareth. Never was a great leader more confidently expected nor more zealously prepared for. He was the product of his time; yes, and the product of long ages before his time. If human longing and human effort made possible his coming, why may not the same conditions make possible the coming of other great leaders? The problem should be attacked at its center and the conditions sought out which will produce religious leaders in a free church, and this involves the clear meaning of what a free church is with a knowledge of what is involved in its leadership.

A free church is a company of men and women who agree to hold public worship together, without blinding themselves by any ecclesiastical authority other than that of their own organization, or by any spiritual authority other than their individual minds and consciences. The chief function of such a church will be the deepening of the religious life. By meeting together for common worship, by studying together the questions of religion, by working together in the practical application of religion in the social order, the members of the church will lay hold with increasing power upon the spiritual realities and the influences of such a church upon the community will be deep and strong. Its members will be active in every form of public service, and the inspiration for such work will come from the church.

The essential thing in such a church will be not merely freedom, but free cooperation. It will rest upon two foundations—the liberty of the individual and the responsibility of the individual. There will be no inactive members, none who rent pews and regard their duty to the church thereby acquitted, but all will be at work together in many differing ways but to one purpose—free citizens in a co-operative venture in religion. In such a free church the minister or professional leader will be needed to coordinate its multifarious activities, to formulate and express its dominating purpose, to direct its endeavors, to inspire the enthusiasm that shall keep the enterprise at high speed and full pressure. Such a task is vastly more difficult and exacting than in any other sort of church.

Nowhere is the need of professional leadership clearer to be seen than in guiding our churches in their work of religious education. In the formulation of our theological beliefs there is need for leadership, especially in our Unitarian churches. We need more able, scientific, constructive leaders on theology written by Unitarian theologians, and we need quite as badly to have our theology interpreted to the people of our churches.

There is a call for expert leadership in the new field of evangelism. We are making a beginning in this direction—trying experiments and endeavoring to develop a technique for an evangelism that will conduct revivals in such a way as to utilize instead of affronting the results of our scientific advance. The work of the minister should also include the aligning of the church with social reforms, the bringing of the various churches into cooperation in the practical work of community service and other similar opportunities. Mr. Elliot defined the ministry as no cut-and-dried, traditional, conventional calling, hampered by out-worn customs and choked by weeds of conformity, but rather as a pioneer's profession to a degree that almost no other profession can boast.

The ministry of a free church is a calling which ought to appeal to the most gifted and generous of our young men. Its difficulties should not prove a deterrent, for there have always been plenty of men ready and eager to attempt the impossible. The small material compensation is no stumbling-block; it only makes the call more imperative. The experiences of other difficult tasks, and the quick and lavish self-sacrifice they have received, proves that men are still ready to give all to follow a great master and live for a great cause. There should be a host of young men giving themselves freely and gladly to the ministry of our free churches. Our task should be merely that of selection of the most fit for the work.

The method Mr. Elliot urged for recruiting the ministry is to deepen within our churches the sense of the value of religious leaders. It is because we do not want to produce them with sufficient earnestness, because we do not set a high enough value upon the religious life itself. This may seem a needlessly slow method, but quicker processes, promising immediate returns, may prove as dangerous as they are alluring. We must look ahead not merely five years but a hundred, and try to do our work so well and so wisely that it may prove a stepping-stone toward yet greater work in the future. This means clearer foresight and more persevering courage. For the time when the vitality and power of our religion shall yield its natural fruit of leadership, we must begin now to prepare, and prepare in just one way—by a deeper religious life, a genuine revival of the spirit, a new baptism of the Holy Ghost.

During the genuinely helpful discussion which followed Mr. Elliot's address, there was endorsement of his suggestion that two steps be taken were the more serious work among our young people and the organization of work in our college centers. A hope was voiced that here at Star Island may be organized a students' conference which will bring men together from many colleges for the purpose of consulting with each other on fundamental questions.

A lecture on astronomy which was on the program for Wednesday evening seems particularly appropriate for Star Island where the whole dome of heaven, from water's edge to water's edge, lays bare its jewels to the view. Rev. and H. Metcalf of Winchester, Mass., explained the modern interesting theory of the development of worlds in his talk on "The Growth of Worlds," illustrated by views the majority of which were from photographs taken by himself or from the large observatories. Mr. Metcalf is deeply interested in the study of his subject and is himself the discoverer of three comets which bear his name. He spoke of the various large observatories; the Mount Wilson, which is the largest in the world and which has a sixty-inch reflector with a hundred-inch one now almost complete, the Mount Hamilton on the Pacific coast six thousand feet above the sea, the Yerkes in Wisconsin, connected with Chicago University, and the observatory at Cambridge, which is among the most important in the world. Mr. Metcalf paid a tribute to Professor Pickering, one of the most famous astronomers now living, who is just completing his fortieth year as director of the observatory at Cambridge.

The close connection between meteorites and comets, was explained. There is a large number of meteorites in the world now. These were regarded as sacred by the ancients, and at the Temple of Ephesus one of these sacred stones has shared the honors of the place with the famous statue of Diana. These stones under analysis have been found to be of the same consistency as the armor plate of our battleships. Thousands of them fall in an hour and if the ratched the surface of the world the earth would be bombarded. Most of them are burned up by the impact perhaps forty or fifty miles from the earth's surface. The meteor and the comet are of the same material.

Pictures of several well-known comets were shown; the Moorehouse comet, the Donati comet of 1858, the familiar Halley's comet and other important ones. An interesting fact presented was that a Haycock tapestry of 1665 showed Halley's comet, which has been periodic and was probably more brilliant at its recent return than at any time since the fifteenth century. He commented on the countless stars studding the sky during his lecture, all but one of which are fixed stars, only twenty-five hundred or half those possible to be seen with the naked eye) being within the vision at any one time. All of these stars are comparable to our own sun, which would have no greater brilliancy than the polar star were it carried out to the distance of the nearest fixed star.

The nebulae among the stars which is a haze-like thingy them together in a peculiar way was described in its various types. The largest nebulae—the great nebula of Orion—which forms an intricate lace-work effect as delicate as the finest lace in the world, the network and cocoon types, and the spiral nebulae of which there are hundreds of thousands, were both explained and pictured.

Mr. Metcalf closed his lecture by comparing the life of the planets to the stages of life—youth, maturity and age.

Rev. Sidney S. Robing of Kingston, Mass., at the morning chapel service spoke briefly on the morning lesson which he read, exhorting us to "put on the whole armor of God." There is a moral equivalent to war which requires us to become soldiers of the spirit. We must don the breastplate of truth, grip the sword of the spirit, and go out eagerly to scale the battlements of duty. He found on the island here much symbolic of life; the sun, sinking in the west after its long and glorious pilgrimage through the heavens, steadfast in the performance of its duty, and the waves swirling madly about the rocks, typifying the insignificance of small things in turning life from its duties.

That more than one innocent dogfish, horse mackerel and halibut are being shot for a shark on the coast.

TO OPEN SULLOWAY'S CAMPAIGN

W. H. Topping Arrives at Manchester From Washington to Start Things Agoing.

W. H. Topping, several days overdue, arrived in Manchester Friday from Washington. He comes to sound the clarion call across the district to the supporters of Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway, to get busy. "Top" came up by automobile from the capital, and says the correct expressions to be applied to the present conditions of the highways in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania would not look good in the columns of a family newspaper.

Rosecrans W. Pillsbury, who is again seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, will make his personal debut before the electorate on Monday evening, speaking at a Pillsbury epoch air meeting on the public square in Derby.

Pillsbury will go to Canobie Lake the following day for the purpose of attending a gathering of the state board of trade, and on Thursday he will speak at the same place before the Rockingham Republican club. He has been spending several days of the present week as a carpenter in Keene—building political fences.

Andrew J. Hook of Warner, whose surname was applied to his job as postmaster a short time ago by the unfriendly Wilsonian administration, has decided to run for representative. Mr. Hook has fled already and is being assured of the solid Republican support in his section, which settles the question.

Gen. Henry B. Fairbanks, of Manchester, whose voice is his fortune, has concluded that Charles D. is not the only bearer of the Fairbanks family name who can create a stir in the approaching campaign. The general has just fled his candidacy for moderator to Ward 1. The general, like the distinguished Charles, is of course, a Republican. He says the Fairbankses are all of the same political faith.

Frank H. Chellis is undaunted by the fact that he didn't get enough votes to be a Roosevelt Republican delegate at the recent Chicago convention. Frank has fled as a Republican candidate for representative from Ward 4, Manchester.

INFANT DISEASE IN LOWELL ORPHANAGE

Institution With Its 121 Children Placed Under Quarantine by Health Authorities--Second Case in City

Lowell, July 21.—A case of infantile paralysis in St. Peter's orphanage, a Catholic institution, was reported to the board of health today, and the place will be quarantined, as several of the 121 children there came in contact with the sick boy.

Francis McCarthy, 5 years of age, is the child who is ill. This is the second case reported in this city.

Suspect Peddlers Spread Germs of Infant Disease
That itinerant hawkers and peddlers may be spreading infantile paralysis through western Massachusetts is suggested in a letter received today by Thane Hanson, state commissioner of weights and measures, from Samuel G. Tenney, an attorney, of Williamstown, Atty. Tenney said in his letter, "By the courtesy of the town board of health I attended an executive meeting of that board and it seemed to be the feeling of the board that peddlers and hawkers should be prohibited from coming into the town of Williamstown during the present danger from this epidemic."

"It appears that the outstanding licenses are state licenses and by the board of health of this town I wish to ask if these licenses of itinerant vendors, hawkers and peddlers cannot be revoked until the danger from contagion appears to be over. "That vendors, for instance, start from North Adams and go through all districts with their fruit more or less exposed to contagion and with flies attending the contents of the wagon, probably some of these flies being brought all the way west."

In commenting on the Tenney letter Commissioner Hanson explained that the city and town boards of health have full power, under the law, to prohibit the entry of itinerant vendors, peddlers or hawkers in order to guard against the carrying of contagious diseases.

Five new cases of supposed infantile paralysis, two of which have not been confirmed, and one of which later was diagnosed as cerebral spinal meningitis were reported to the state department of health today.

Francis Hanson of Springfield and Julius Shick of Malden have contracted the disease. The two suspicious cases are in North Adams, where the plague already has attacked several victims. Helen, Taron and Veronika Taron are under observation.

The meningitis case is that of Thomas Brimbleton of Cambridge.

A reply to Dr. McLoughlin's query regarding travel restrictions in New York was received this morning as follows:

"Federal authorities do not require adults to have certificates."

"Certificates are issued to those children who do not reside in infected premises."

The telegram is signed by Dr. Haven Emerson, health commissioner of New York. Dr. McLoughlin's inquiry was designed to find out whether Massachusetts people could travel in New York and the reply does not answer the question.

HAMPTON BEACH

Hampton Beach, July 21.—Commencing on Sunday, August 6 and continuing until about Labor Day, Episcopal services will be held each Sunday morning in the Casino theatre. Rev. Charles Whitcomb Tyler, D. D., of St. John's church, Haverhill, Mass., will conduct the services each Sunday, with morning prayer at 11 o'clock.

The beach parish suffered a serious loss in the destruction in the fire of St. Peter's-by-the-Sea, the pretty rustic chapel built in Nodd's field in 1912. The building was dedicated on July 21 of that year and cost $300. Many of the furnishings fortunately were saved, including the altar and the bell which was formerly hanging in the old Winkate church in Haverhill, Mass. It is probable that work on a new church edifice will be begun this fall so that the building will be in readiness for services with the opening of another season. An effort is being made to secure the lot adjoining the one on which the former structure stood. The beach parish is a growing field of activity, and the work this year is badly handicapped by the loss of the chapel which was the first church built upon Hampton Beach.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, July 22.—Adjutant General Cole is more than proud of the showing made by the Massachusetts boys at the Mexican border when subjected to the rigorous physical examinations by the federal medical officers. Out of ten companies of the Second Massachusetts Infantry regiment comprising 1200 men, the examinations were satisfied at first glance with all except two and although there is no doubt in regard to the two neither of them have been rejected. Massachusetts has adopted the federal standards regarding physical examinations for militiamen. Not a single enlisted man with physical defects has been accepted except upon recommendation of the chief surgeon, said General Cole today.

The thinking glass has been placed under the official ban of the health department of the state in all red dresser dispensaries where there is not running hot water. Cardboard drinking cups coated with paraffine will hereafter be used in all places where there are no facilities for washing in hot water. The only alternative will be for the proprietor to have enough glasses that are clean to give convincing assurance that he is not apt to use a glass twice.

Although there was considerable criticism of the new automobile law providing drastic punishment for intoxicated and reckless automobile drivers, the new legislation, according to police officials, has been working wonders. There has been more careful operation of motor cars and less intoxication among operators and owners of cars, the officials declare. The new law has been in operation

I'VE BEEN TOLD THAT

—this city is almost alone in the state in some respects to its credit, but that it is practically alone in one respect not greatly to its credit, and that is the removal of garbage. Hardly a city or town in New England of the size of Portsmouth is without provisions for the removal by the city, under the direction of the Board of Health. In Portsmouth the residents are compelled to look after this part of the program for themselves and the tax rate is $22.80. When we have so many poor streets, 147th water rates, streets sprinkled only when an additional tax is assessed, insufficient light in many sections, and other conditions, it looks to many as though Portsmouth residents were getting mighty little for their $22.80.

—the firemen are working hard on their plans for the entertainment of the delegates to the state convention to be held here shortly and that many more are expected to visit the city than were here last year. Nearly every visiting delegate and the members of the departments who accompanied their delegates from the several cities and towns of the state were delighted with their treatment on the last occasion. All of these men who can possibly get away are making an effort to return this year and many who didn't some last year are determined to attend the present convention. Portsmouth is fast adding to her reputation as an ideal convention city.

—on next Tuesday one hundred or more motor cyclists are expected to arrive in Portsmouth and at once they will be entertained by Clifford Lored at his place of business on Pleasant street. With the members of the association making the run, Mr. Baker, the holder of the record for the coast to coast trip, is also expected to arrive. Baker established a record some time ago for the across-the-continent run on a motor cycle. This record was later beaten by the Cadillac automobile. Baker decided that he could do even better than that so he set out from San Francisco and took several hours off the auto's time, establishing a new record for motor driven vehicles from coast to coast. And his record still stands.

The largest Spanish chestnut tree in the world grows in a forest on the slopes of Mt. Elm. It is said that 100 soldiers and their horses once found shelter beneath it from the rain.

GO NO FARTHER.

The Evidence Is At Your Door.

Portsmouth proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt. James Pickles, 123 Bankett Street, Portsmouth, says: "I was afflicted with kidney disease for several years. The pain in my back was terrible and often sharp stitches so cramped me that I could scarcely move. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and contained sediment like brick-dust. During the night, I was obliged to get up to pass them. Although I tried various medicines, I was unable to get relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Phillips' Pharmacy. They helped me from the first and a couple of boxes cured me." (Statement given June 26, 1911).

THE RESULTS LASTED.

On October 20, 1915, Mr. Pickles said: "You are welcome to use the recommendation I gave Doan's Kidney Pills in 1911. This medicine has given me permanent results."

INTERSTATE SHIPMENTS LEGAL

May Transport Liquor From This City to Lynn Without Confiscation.

According to a decision of Judge Lummus Friday in the district court at Lynn, the Interstate Express companies doing business between this city and Lynn, have evolved a scheme whereby liquor can be transported between the cities and delivered in Lynn without violating the law.

By sending with an order for liquor, an agreement that title to the liquor passes to the consignee in Portsmouth, thereby relieving the express company of the guarantee of safe delivery, Lynn residents can obtain liquor from New Hampshire.

Heretofore the passage of the title has not occurred until delivery was made in Lynn. Under the circumstances Peter Koulbars, a teamster employed by an Interstate company was found not guilty of the charge of illegally transporting liquor.

SAILORS CATCH HUGE SHARKS

Dozens Killed by Crew of the U. S. S. Eagle While in Haytian Waters.

Catching man-eating sharks has been the sport of the crew of the U. S. S. Eagle which this week arrived at the local navy yard after being stationed in Haytian waters for about five months. Several members of the crew have photographs of some of their prize catches.

Dozens of sharks were caught and the sailors had some exciting sport in capturing some of the big fellows. One of the largest landed measured 11 feet 8 inches from tip to tail. It was captured in the harbor of Caymanes in Hayti on April 28.

According to one of the Eagle's sailors the man-eaters are caught by means of a large hook baited with raw meat. It is necessary to shoot them after they are hooked. The crew have taken the teeth of the monsters as souvenirs and they have quite a collection.

NOBLE'S ISLAND IS NOW IN GOOD SHAPE

The board of public works is entitled to something in the way of thanks from the public on the excellent job on the highway at Noble's Island where the road has at last been put in good shape between the two bridges. The improvement at least is important to the business men of York who recently protested to the city officials and Board of Trade and should last for some time. It will do much to end the usual kick which comes every year on the condition of this part of Market street. In order to complete the work it was necessary to transfer the city steam roller on a flat car over the Boston and Maine tracks on account of being too heavy to pass over the draw of the Noble's Island bridge.

SAILORS CATCH HUGE SHARKS

Dozens Killed by Crew of the U. S. S. Eagle While in Haytian Waters.

Catching man-eating sharks has been the sport of the crew of the U. S. S. Eagle which this week arrived at the local navy yard after being stationed in Haytian waters for about five months. Several members of the crew have photographs of some of their prize catches.

Dozens of sharks were caught and the sailors had some exciting sport in capturing some of the big fellows. One of the largest landed measured 11 feet 8 inches from tip to tail. It was captured in the harbor of Caymanes in Hayti on April 28.

According to one of the Eagle's sailors the man-eaters are caught by means of a large hook baited with raw meat. It is necessary to shoot them after they are hooked. The crew have taken the teeth of the monsters as souvenirs and they have quite a collection.
